Go

A committed veggie, Chris can whisk his actress wife Gwyneth Paltrow to Malaysian restaurant Awana (left) on Sloane Avenue to sample the new vegetarian menu (020 7584 8880).

The new brunch menu at Comptoir Gascon, with a host of organic egg dishes, is sure to appeal to the eco designer (020 7608 0851).

Ali can have a beautiful day out looking at Walter Sickert's impressions of London (above) in Modern Painters: The Camden Town Group. At Tate Britain until 5 May (020 7887 8888).

The architect might like to consider new venue The Deck, a private-hire glass room and terrace without a grain of concrete on top of the National Theatre, for a summer party. Taking bookings from 30 April (020 7452 3796).

The stardust sculptures in former Issey Miyake model Liliame Lijn's new exhibition Stardust will appeal to the ethereal Lily. From 15 April to 5 July at the Riflemaker gallery in Soho (020 7439 0000).

Leonardo DiCaprio's documentary, The 11th Hour, will clue up Lily on climate change before she enrolls with the student activists at Cambridge University in the autumn. At the Apollo Cinema, Regent Street until Thursday (0871 220 6000).

See

His daughter Apple will love the fruit trees and flower sculptures in the Spring Renaissance urban garden installation, taking over Covent Garden market from 23 April to 18 May (020 7208 152).

The new range of sustainable garden timepieces (above) from The Cotswold Company could well inspire the Coldplay frontman to write a follow-up to the global hit 'Clocks' (www.cotswoldco.com).

Bono's wife can furnish their home with funky Fool Bloom stools (below), upholstered in vintage fabrics by designer Linda Scott (www.foolbloom.co.uk).

The entrepreneur should switch to Ibuyeco, a new car insurance company launched by Laura Bailey, which offsets its carbon footprint by investing in windfarms and reforestation projects (www.ibuyeco.co.uk).

He can check the green cred of his fellow draughtsmen at the Art: Architecture exhibition featuring drawings by Nicholas Grimshaw and Norman Foster. Until 28 April at the Belgravia Gallery (020 7495 1010).

The Self Sufficient-ish Bible by eco twins Andy and Dave Hamilton (Hodder & Stoughton, £25) will do wonders for his garden at his Tuscan estate.

Experience

The fervent cyclist might like to upgrade to a new folding Saab Everywhere Bike (left) for his daily rides on Primrose Hill (www.saab.co.uk).

The Trees For Cities patron can treat herself to a guilt-free bowl of Ben & Jerry's new Chunky Monkey flavour ice cream. Made with Fairtrade chocolate from Ecuador (www.benjerry.co.uk).

A new hypoallergenic Eco Pillow (above), made from recycled bottles and natural cotton, will ensure the model sleeps soundly (www.ecobedding.co.uk).

His wife Ruth Rogers of The River Café would know how to cook with supplies from Buckinghamshire-based Ethical Food Company, which now delivers to London (www.ethicalfoods.co.uk).
